DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:*

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claim 21 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Farash in view of Kamiyama et al. Farash discloses a timepiece with a dial face as shown in Fig 1 consisting of the faces of movements 2 and 4, first and second time movements having hour and minute hands as shown (see also p. 1, par 0019), the centers thereof corresponding to the rotational axes of the hour and minute hands, the centers being spaced along the long axis of the timepiece, first and second stems for controlling first and second movements, as shown and suggested at par. 0026., the minute handles of the two movements spanning the dial face.
2. Farash does not specifically describe the shape of the dial face as being oval shaped. However, the embodiment of Fig. 1 has the appearance of an elongated and rounded rectangle. In addition, patentee discloses several exemplary shapes in Figs. 1-4, thus suggesting that the shape of the watchcase and face is a design matter suited to the taste of the user. Thus one of ordinary skill in the art would select an oval shape for the face in Farash as one well known timepiece designs to achieve an ornamental and aesthetic effect.

3. Farash further discloses a watch band aligned with the long axis of the dial face. However, the placement of the watch band along the short axis of the watch case, as claimed, would be an obvious alternative design feature where an elongated watch case is placed along the axis of the wrist to accommodate the larger dimensions of the watch thereon.

4. Farash does not disclose a plurality of stems for controlling each movement. Kamiyama et al suggests several setting buttons 8-11 and corresponding stems for controlling the various timepiece functions of a timepiece. Thus, one skilled in the art would be familiar with using one or more setting means for controlling and setting timepiece functions. It would therefore be obvious for one skilled in the art to provide each display combination of hours/minutes with a separate arrangement of two or more stems for separately controlling the functions thereof.

5. In claim 21, line 10, "minute handles" appears to be an error and should be corrected to "time movements".

6. Claims 1,2 5-7 and 9-20 are allowed.

7. Applicant's comments have been given careful consideration but have not been found persuasive for the reasons stated above.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
